UPDATE

We are currently working on design for new structure. This is a major watershed structure. Even though this was an unplanned closure, we are still subject to all normal compliance and permitting requirements at the state and federal levels.

We have completed hydrologic and hydraulic work and are evaluating design alternatives. As we indicated earlier this was not planned work and has to be fit in to everything else we are already committed to do. Normally, it takes about 2 years to get a large structure fully through reviews, permitting, bidding and construction. Add to that, we have two other major water crossing structure failures elsewhere in the county.
